

PROJECT PLANNING & CONTROL CORPORATE FEEDBACK

PMO Lead Planner Rolls Royce Submarines

REASONS FOR CHOOSING THIS PARTICULAR COURSE?

Schedule maturity is high on my agenda, without schedule maturity you can't trust your schedule outputs. Having accurate forecast on the delivery of our components is very important to Rolls Royce Submarines as a business, and more importantly to our customer. I was tasked with lifting the schedule maturity throughout the component schedules and also introduce a common best practice approach to the way we manage our planning and scheduling activities. The capability of our planning community is also high on my agenda, I feel that if you provide people with the best tools, processes and training, you can achieve both high capable people which are producing and maintaining high quality schedules. When the APM PPC was launched I immediately knew this was the training course that I was going to introduce to the business. The PPC is now the back bone of all our training planning or scheduling material and best practice approaches that are used throughout the business.

HOW HAVE YOU FOUND DEALING WITH US?

TBS have always been there to offer their help and support when needed and have always been able to satisfy our business by providing their training solutions. I have dealt with the company on a fair few occasions to which it's always been a pleasant transaction of business. They are a professional organisation that hasn't lost that feeling of being a close knit family run business.

FEEDBACK ON OUR TRAINERS

Having dealt with both trainers John and Terry, I can see that having an high standard of trainer is key to the success of TBS. Both trainers have always proven their wealth of knowledge and experience during the training sessions that have been conducted for Rolls Royce Submarines.

WHY TRAINING BYTESIZE?

I attended the PPC foundation and practitioner course myself to get a flavour on the content, and to see if this was a course that I could introduce to the business. Not only did this prove a worthwhile course that would give us everything I was looking for, but also the training that was delivered was done to a high quality standard. TBS have now become the training provider for all our PPC training, and to this date the training that they provide is still at an high quality standard.
